THE NEW ASSOCIATION.

IT WILL BE KNOWN AS THE PLAYERS' NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Who the Delegates Will Be at the Meeting to Be Held at New York Monday—State-ment Still Made That Comiskey Has Signed with the Brotherhood of Chicago Team—Hoping and Hoping News.

By Telegraph to the PORT-DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The name of the new base ball league, the Players' National League, will surely have a club in Brooklyn next year. John M. Ward will be the captain. The other business with a body of well-known capitalists. On Wednesday there will be a joint meeting of players and backers, when new contracts will be signed and rules adopted and officers elected. This will be the really important meeting of the week. The plan of the new league is only partly co-operative. The movement is really but a little more than a change of employers, with more privileges and liberties accorded to the players. A statement giving the details will be issued after Monday's meeting. Visiting clubs will be given 50 per cent of both gate and grand stand receipts, and when the receipts exceed a certain figure the gate will be divided pro rata among player and stockholder. The governing board, called the central board of directors, will consist of the president and sixteen members—one player and one stockholder from each of the eleven clubs. This board, at the end of the season, will make up the teams for the coming year. The aim will be to equalize the playing strength of the clubs as nearly as possible, and changes will be the rule rather than the exception. The meeting next Monday will be a large one, as nearly two-thirds the men who played in the National League this year are expected to be present. Indications point to the transfer of the Indianapolis team. The allotment of players as given in yesterday's Boston Globe is not wholly correct. Denny and Glasgow may not be assigned to Pittsburgh and Arthur Irwin may not go to Philadelphia, although the latter is expected to be assigned to the Philadelphia club. It is extremely anxious that he should do so. Charley Comiskey will play with Chicago. In all probability the National League will join hands with the American Association, and the weakest cities in both organizations will be dropped. It is as good as settled that the players will not accept the present Association champions into the National League. Cincinnati, St. Louis, Columbus and the others will also endeavor to get aboard. The magnates are all a sea, and nothing definite has been decided as yet, until they meet in this city on the 15th inst. Al Spalding, the Boston manager and Messrs. Russell and Rogers, who are the managers of several minor league players and are searching for more, suppose Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and Cincinnati, composed of "young blood" with such clubs as Brooklyn, St. Louis and Cincinnati, which team would play the championship of St. Louis without Comiskey might not be able to accomplish this season. The players would run away from the others as Spalding and Russell would pass a field of several players, and the public will be more likely to support the league which puts up the best article of base ball. With the players' organization, the outlook for the magnates is far from rosy. Heretofore the statement that they would test the validity of the "reserve rule" in court has not carried much weight. This rule, it is claimed by the National League, secures the right of the players to that body during the next season. Eminent lawyers, among them Messrs. Russell and Rogers, have expressed the opinion that the word "reserve" in the contract of this league is a mere legal device, and that the contract will not hold in law. The contract guaranteed the player employment, while if the claim of the magnates is sustained he would be reserved for at least one year. The word "reserve" was intended to prevent the player from joining any club in any one of the several organizations, which are parties to an instrument known as the "National Agreement." The word "reserve" is not protected by this agreement, and the reserve rule is ineffective as far as the new organization is concerned.

A prominent member of the Players' National League in the Eastern States, who has the rumors that certain players were weakening, or would at the last moment decide to join the National League, has been given the credit of such stories. They are given out for the purpose of creating a panic among the players. We expect just such yarns and they will doubtless continue even down to our time. The players' organization will be no truer and we will yet witness the contemptible behavior that every base ball player has his price.

The Western Association's Meeting.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Nov. 1.—Secretary Morton has notified the members of the clubs in minor leagues in every part of the country, to send representatives to the Western Association's meeting. An alliance, offensive and defensive, will be formed, and then all will try to get the best of the action of the League and Brotherhood meetings. The Brotherhood meetings will be held Monday, and the League meetings the day following. If the League passes unfavorable resolutions relating to the minor associations, Morton's plan is to have the action of the Brotherhood. Should these propositions of the minor leagues be given to result, Morton has a big scheme for the government of the Western Association. He has in view the Western Association becoming the minor associations what the National League has been in the past. In a similar manner, Morton proposes that the Western Association shall become an open competitor to the National League.

The World's Championship Record.

The batting and fielding averages of the New York and Brooklyn players for the work performed in the nine games for the championship of the world are herewith presented. The New Yorks are far ahead of the Brooklyn in batting, both as regards individuals and as a small number of games, are first and second. Clark of Brooklyn is still third, although Ward is within .001 of him. Collins has yielded fourth place and allowed O'Rourke as well as Ward to pass him. A glance at the figures
